Friday, January 22, 2011 Destination: Dolores County Just a few months back I drove up to Dolores County, Colorado to meet up with some long time friends and take a hike up a mountain. I had never been to Dolores County before, and wasn't exactly sure where to go, but I did know that this was the only mountain that I ever wanted to see. I mean, who wouldn't want to take a hike up a mountain. Any mountain. So, up I went. As you walk up this mountain you see little red dots all the way around the top of the mountain. Those little red dots are trailheads. You can do one, two, three hikes up the mountain in the morning. The hike takes about 4-6 hours. Anyways, the hike is challenging, but not so much that you couldn't do it if you didn't have a car. Here are some pictures from the trip: And then of course you can't forget the drive up, here are some shots from our drive up: And last but not least, we made it to the top: Here is me at the top... I got to meet up with my friends Tamra and Allison, who I met through Rockstar Photography when I started this blog, we had a blast! Allison had never been to Dolores County, so she was happy to see a mountain she had never been to before. I am such a happy camper, thanks for reading, commenting, and for all the support you've given me thus far! Now, it's my turn to give back. Without you, this blog wouldn't be what it is today. So, I've decided to keep it going, so that you guys continue to read my posts. For the last couple months I have been busy trying to launch my Etsy store, and doing things that I haven't done in a while, so my blog will be quiet for a little while. I promise, in the new year I will continue to update this blog., M. Vetterli, The Cosine Law of the Coherence of Signals in Randomly Subsampled Stochastic Models, IEEE Trans. Inform. A museum in Japan has carved itself a niche by taking on 'supernatural' cases, with the latest incident involving the deaths of a pregnant woman and her two-year-old daughter, both of whom are assumed to have been killed by a supernatural force. The case happened near Setagaya in Tokyo, with emergency workers reported to be stunned to find the bodies of a 24-year-old woman, pregnant with her third child, and her two-year-old daughter inside the car. Police report finding two glass bottles, an ornamental screw, and a charm among other items on the ground near the car. According to the BBC, there are reports that the woman had been trying to reverse her car while attempting to escape from two other people believed to be trying to abduct her. Police now believe that the incident is connected with "a demon." The Japan Times is reporting that investigators discovered "a scattering of glass and a purse" and one of the bottles had broken, which suggests the incident was the result of something other than the car hitting a pothole or tree. "There is a phenomenon that in cases where such incidents occur, there's usually a pattern of communication between the mother and child, and regarding whether it's favorable or not," Tetsuo Masuyama, spokesman for Tokyo Metropolitan Police Department, said, according to the Japan Times. "Also, after the incident the baby cries out 'Mama' a few times." Read more The Emergency Election Sale is now live! Thereafter, a Fe-Ni coating is formed on the surface of the metal alloy by electrodeposition. Conventional ferritic stainless steel sheets, such as those disclosed in Japanese patent application Kokoku Nos. 47-5043 and 47-5044
