Field of the Invention This invention relates to a method of reading a color image using a full-color image pickup device, a method of reproducing a color image using the full-color image pickup device, and a method of producing a full-color image using a full-color image pickup device. 2. Description of Related Art A silver halide color photographic color image-pickup device (hereinafter, a color image-pickup device will be referred to as an "image pickup device") is widely used to take a picture of a person who is taking the picture, e.g., a medical patient. Some medical patients have a skin condition, for example, a skin defect, a pigmented skin, or a skin discoloration. When the skin condition is taken into consideration, what is called a medical pickup is performed. FIG. 9A of the accompanying drawings schematically illustrates one of the conventional methods of performing a medical pickup. In the conventional method of performing a medical pickup, an image pickup device 10, which is disposed at a predetermined distance from a subject object 41, is used to take a picture of the subject object 41. For example, as shown in FIG. 9A, the image pickup device 10 obtains a visible-light image containing a skin defect and then the image pickup device 10 displays the visible-light image on the image pickup device 10 as a video image on a display monitor 12. After this, when the operator uses one of his or her hands to touch the skin defect, the operator uses the other hand to write on a medical record a medical prescription on a paper. A light reflected by the skin defect is received by a white board or the like so that the operator is able to tell whether the skin defect is there, in the writing. When, as illustrated in FIG. 9A, the medical pickup is performed, the image pickup device 10, which is located at a predetermined distance from the subject object 41, can accurately obtain the visible-light image of the subject object 41. FIG. 10 of the accompanying drawings schematically illustrates one of the conventional methods of performing a reproduction operation, such as a copy operation, and a printing operation on the conventional color image-pickup device. In this conventional
