Recover Computer Software is an easy to use tool that helps users recover important documents, files, settings and other important data even if your hard disk has been lost or damaged due to virus attack or un-authorized access. Fabrication of silver nanoparticles-labeled chitosan-based nanomicelles for the detection of Listeria monocytogenes. A novel fluorescent nanoprobe for detecting Listeria monocytogenes (LM) was developed based on chitosan-coated silver nanoparticles (CS-AgNPs) and L.

monocytogenes. In this nanoprobe, the chitosan (CS) provides functional groups for the adsorption of AgNPs. The CS-AgNPs nanoprobe also offered a good platform for the entrapment of hydrophobic antimicrobial agents, quenching of the fluorescence of dyes and improving the bacteriostatic effect. The effects of a variety of factors on the fluorescence detection of L. monocytogenes were examined. Fluorescence quenching and the enhancement of bacteriostatic effect were achieved in a nanoprobe. Furthermore, three assays were performed to test the sensitivity of this nanoprobe for detecting L. monocytogenes. Under optimal conditions, the nanoprobe showed high sensitivity and selectivity for detection of L. monocytogenes with a detection limit of 3.32×10^4 CFU/mL. The proposed nanoprobe is expected to have good feasibility and develop potential for use as an alternative approach for the detection of L.

monocytogenes. Q: How to prove that this inequality holds? Let $f(x)$ be a smooth function satisfying $f(1)=0$ and $f'(x) \geq 0$. Then I would like to prove that $|f(x)| \leq f'(x)(x-1)$. I tried to use the mean value theorem but $f'(x)$ can be unbounded, so I'm not even sure how to apply the theorem here. A: The Cauchy mean value theorem states that $f'(x) = \lim_{h \rightarrow 0} \frac{f(x+h)-f(x)}{h}$ for all $x \in \mathbb{R}$
