“Gravity Escape From The Maze” is a platform action game on the 3DS eShop for purchase. The game has been designed to get your on the edge of your seat, but not to the point where it becomes frustrating. The main objective of the game is to get out of the mazes by using your reflexes to avoid the many traps that are laid out for you. The game offers a variety of exciting features including bonus levels, secret rooms, challenging bosses and more. Gravity Escape From The Maze will offer a totally new experience, so make sure to check it out! Lurk fly I have just played this on my 3DS with the new NintendoLand hack. It is a fun little game. I am not sure if it is harder than the Zelda games. It's the kind of game where I thought I was going to be the toughest to beat, but was definitely not what I was expecting. There are a lot of neat little game features. The graphics and music are great. It was a bit tricky to get used to, but I like the way that you have to look for keys. I really enjoyed the first playthrough, but the second one was more like an exercise in frustration than fun. The whole premise is, you have to get all the keys for the exit without falling into a pit. There are springs that save you, and some of them you only get to use once. If you do fall into a pit, you have to restart the level. When you start out, your controller is as square as you are, and your body is just a little ball. Then you start flying, trying to reach the exit key. You can move in four directions (left, right, up, down). Your body will turn into two little balls (one for the left side, one for the right) that are free to move. You have three lives to use, and you will die if you fall into a pit or if you run out of lives. At first, you can only collect as many keys as you need to get to the exit. But later in the game, you can collect more than just one key per level, so you have to try and get them all. There are a lot of interesting little things in the levels, like springy platforms and glow creatures. There are also little bouncing tiles that will actually make you fly higher and faster. If you collect all the keys, you will fly so

What's new:

Stealth Fighter DEX, formerly known as "Angel", is a stealth video game developed by Ace Divisive and published by Sony Computer Entertainment Europe on the PlayStation. It was released in Japan on October 19, 1997, in North America on November 17, 1997 and in Europe on June 14, 1998. The game is considered to be one of the best stealth games on the PlayStation; IGN rated it at 9/10 and GameSpot gave it a 9/10 score. It was followed by the sequel, Angel: Priory of the Orange Moon. Gameplay Stealth Fighter DEX is a side-scrolling stealth game. Players assume the role of an assassin or bounty hunter named Angel who is engaged in a game of cat and mouse with the two main antagonists of the game, Shadow and Deathwing. At the beginning of the game Angel is faced with Shadow and Deathwing and two other hired assassins sent by Shadow. When battle begins, the screen splits horizontally. As the character moves along the bottom half of the screen, Shadow's torso is moving up and down. As the character approaches the centre of the screen, Shadow's upper torso is facing horizontally and Shadow's head can be seen. If Angel is standing in front of Shadow at the moment the screen splits, he is under attack. If he is near Shadow's shoulder line, Shadow is facing Angel and throwing his knives at him. A character can be killed by at most one knife, as all of Shadow's knives start at the shoulder. The appearance of Shadow's torso and head can also be altered via keyboard commands. As Shadow attacks, he will leap up a short distance and then move along the screen horizontally. Deathwing's attention will also be drawn to where Shadow is, since Shadow will be the first thing to move, followed by Deathwing. If he is not defeated, Shadow will eventually find the assassin named Angel, meaning Deathwing and Shadow are both responsible for the assassination of Angel. Angel's goal is to survive for as long as possible, and eliminating Shadow and Deathwing is optional. If Angel succeeds in eliminating Shadow or Deathwing prior to the end of the game, he will collect one power up, but the game cannot be saved. All of Shadow's and Deathwing's health can be replenished by jumping on objects nearby. Plot Angel begins as a contract assassin hired to kill a gaming publisher known as "Orbspire". His employer is DeArtej, the company
