WaveCrash!! is a fast paced, competitive puzzle brawler. No one wants to be on the receiving end of a crashing wave! Blast your opponent off the blocks with a series of waves and then tilt the board to tip the balance and claim victory. Hitting an opponent's wave causes the two waves to "crash" and cancel out. Hitting your opponent pushes the dividing line forward, earning you more of the board and bringing you one step closer to victory. Players control a roster of unique characters with special attacks and perks. Match up and smash through rows of blocks until the gap is narrow enough to launch a wave at your opponent! You can also utilize unique combos to make your super attacks extra powerful, like smashing your opponent to the ground to then sky stomp them. What's new:

is an NES/Famicom compilation game released by Namco in 1991. It was released in North America, Europe and Australasia; it was, however, never released in Japan as the market is too small and the game is too expensive. The game used sound samples from the anime Perfect Blue, as well as sounds from Omen, Arpeggio of Blue Steel and Wicked & Divine; additionally, the title screen was also made to resemble a manga strip. WaveRace!! is one of the least-known entries of Namco's Wave Race series. Though the track is potentially better designed than that of the first two games, the underwater obstacles and vehicle-to-vehicle interaction are very limited and feel out-of-place considering the game's original setting. Toward the end of the game, the player is asked to choose the first and third track to form an "ultimate" race track. The track on the third track is very short, and may be the last one to get the route correctly chosen. This track is also the hardest to get right, as the finish line is in one place and there are no sections that require use of all types of vehicles. This track is available in TTE mode only, as there is no choice for finishing order when racing in TTE mode. This is probably the worst in the series, since virtually no enhancements have been made to the track. It is impossible to finish in less than 15 seconds, in contrast to the first game in which it was possible to finish in around one minute and 30 seconds. This is because most or all of the floatables (bait balls) have been removed from the track, which is impractical for this game as the track is actually designed to discourage floatables from getting anywhere near the finish line. Alliances are no longer possible and not even pre-setted vehicles can go to the other the race track if necessary. This would however have been an enjoyable race if in the other two part series, if it wasn't for the main track being rather long and not consisting of a straight line with only a couple of corners. The main game is a remake of the arcade port World Rally 3 for the NES, which itself is a remake of the arcade game World Rally Championship, which shares the same game engine as the NES version of Rally Championship. In the arcade game, it was possible to defeat the final boss from only using remote-controlled cars, which wasn't an option in the NES
