Q: How to detect if a row in a TableView was created by onClick I have a table view displaying a list of items. When I click on a row, a new activity is launched but the ActionBar is not shown yet because the new activity is created behind the ActionBar. I use the following code to show the ActionBar when the activity is created: `showActionBar()`; But when I do that, it cancels the click of the row on the list, because the `onClick` is not handled anymore. I can't get how to detect if the row was created by the click, so I can show the ActionBar (without changing the click behavior). Please help! :) A: you can add an `onItemClickListener`. This code should get the row number of the item you are clicking.

listView.setOnItemClickListener(new OnItemClickListener() { public void onItemClick(AdapterView parent, View view, int position, long id) { Toast.makeText(Quizzes.this, "Row: " + (position + 1), Toast.LENGTH_SHORT).show(); } });

Q: Adding collectionview cell labels to scene In my storyboard scene, I have added a tableview to the scene. In that tableview I have created a collectionview. I have added a label to the cell in the collectionview. Now I want that label to be hidden when the cell gets selected and I want the label's text to be visible when the cell is being selected. How can I do that? A: The short answer is: You can't unless you create your own custom cell. The easiest way to get around this is to use a custom cell for a view that you add to your collectionview at some index path (0 based): `UICollectionViewCell *cell = [self.collectionView cellForItemAtIndexPath:indexPath]; cell.label.hidden = YES;` Here is a link to an article that Image caption Trust accounts are seen by investors as a secure way to park their money Accountants have been told to scrutinise trust accounts more closely than ever before as more people seek investment funds that offer tax protection. The HM Revenue and Customs said it had recorded a 22% rise in people taking advantage of pension schemes where they pay tax on investments. More people are also getting advice from their accountants about trust accounts, the watchdog said. The watchdog will step up inspections. In April the new cross-government Pensions Commission recommended many schemes be stripped of tax relief, although it left the decision to a future government. The HMRC said it had seen a doubling in the number of people using such schemes from 7.2 million in 2010-11 to 15.2 million in 2014-15. Overall there are now about 37 million people paying into such schemes. "I don't think people understand enough about the benefits of these trust-based investment vehicles," said Fabian Cleobury, head of financial services at the Pensions Regulator. "Pension scheme members and their advisers are duty-bound to ensure the most tax efficient options are considered, and [this] duty also extends to investigating trusts and advising on the tax status of beneficiaries." Problems He said advisers needed to be vigilant that there were no problems with the trusts they recommended. "As a regulator we will be continuing to look at the issues that arise with these vehicles," he added. The HMRC said trusts had become the second most popular option to pay into a pension scheme after pensions, with up to £1.3tn of money sitting in such schemes. But there are questions about the value of the money being invested in trusts. The Pensions Regulator has been spending £60m a year to get information from companies that offer them. That is likely to go up, with the watchdog saying it will also be inspecting more trusts to check the information. The Pensions Regulator said about £20bn of savings were sitting in trusts, and that £6bn had been withdrawn from them. The watchdog also said that to maintain the tax breaks, most trusts had to be filed in the
