If I ssh into a linux box, can I tell it to connect to a network (located on a specific IP address) rather than whatever IP address happens to be on the network (e.g. in this case, 192.168.1.100)? A: No, it's not possible. ssh protocol is a layer 2 protocol (all network layers). It communicates with lower layer protocols like IP or TCP that are all layer 3.
