ArcGIS Desktop 9.1 full versionQ: How to set focus on an input when document is loaded I'm creating a form with an input and a textarea, it's for newsletter sign up and I want to set focus on the input when the document is loaded. I tried with: `$(document).ready(function() { $("#sub").focus(); });` But it's not working. Could you help me please? A: Maybe using `trigger('focus')` should work for you, might be a non jQuery way? A: You need to use `blur()` instead of `focus()`. Focusing an element will focus on the element and change its focus to the first focusable element(by default). `blur()` simply removes the focus from the element which will keep it in its previous state. So: `$(document).ready(function() { $("#sub").blur(); });` President Obama's Israel Mideast peace process is going through its death throes. It has been dead for almost a year now, and the president's several years long efforts to extend the process beyond the April expiration of the framework agreement have not been successful. Obama's successor will be faced with the very difficult task of resolving the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, with much of his political capital wasted on what was already a hopeless cause. There is no reason to expect that the next president, whatever party he or she is from, will be able to revive this bone of contention any time soon. All the gains Israel made in the previous negotiations have already been lost, and it is time to end this absurd charade. Israel cannot keep perpetuating its occupation and suppress the Palestinian revolution. Israel will never get a Palestinian state so long 6d1f23a050
